MISS CORWIN SEES MUCH TO ADMIRE IN ITALY.

SEES MANY ART GALLERIES

The Catacombs Most Extraordinary—Effect is Grewsome, But Monks Are Fine Looking and Happy.

Today The Democrat-Forum continues the letter, under date of August 1, from Miss May Corwin, who at that time was writing from Florence, Italy. Her last letter told of her ride over the Appian way and appeared in the issue of Thursday, August 26:

We drove through some lovely country scenes, returning by the Nova Appia. They use pure white oxen through these parts of the country for all heavy work, and when plowing in the fields they look very picturesque. Another North Italian idea is a brightly colored protection for the drive of the water cart with mule trappings to match. The cover, much like a buggy top, is always whirled around to the side and looks like it was slightly tipsy and the man stands instead of sitting.

We returned to join the party at the old Roman Forum. Like Pompeii, I must say the pictures are correct. The only addition we had was the little street car partly down on one side, which had shot through the fence and disturbed the peace of the old ruins, beside injuring fourteen people whom it took through without admission fee, and causing a street car strike until brakes were put on all cars. It was a little rough on our pocketbooks to hire cabs, but not nearly so bad as the shaking up our systems would have had if we had bolted into some of the ancient strongholds thus. We would have added some remains, I suspect.

They showed us the tomb of Romulus and Remus, indicated by an inscription on one stone saying it would be made of black marble, and there was a piece of black marble, therefore no doubt could remain that they really lived. The old pillars standing in small groups to indicate a bygone temple were pathetic, but even as beautiful and majestic. I plucked a bay leaf from the tomb of Caesar. A large stone on which his body was burned had been used as an altar to him afterward. The forum extends for several blocks, ending in the arch of Titus, through which you look directly at the huge Colisseum. The column of Trajan at the forum of that emperor is very beautiful, as are all the triumphal arches in the old part of the city.

It is a beautiful city, each plazza containing either some old monument or a wonderfully wrought fountain. The profusion of water was a marvel to us, so lately from parched Spain. The public parks and museums are the gardens and palaces of all old families and are perfectly magnificent. One, the Borgere, is on one of the hills of the city, and the promenade gives a fine view of the country around. All these cities seem to be surrounded by mountains and these in turn are spotted with villas and monasteries.

We saw the Sistine chapel of the Vatican, that great creation of Titians. The altar piece all across one end, called 'Last Judgment," is the least pleasing. It is blackened in parts by incense smoke and Christ as a terrible judge is too energetic. We got mirrors and walked around staring at them in trance-like meditation, but they saved the much overworked neck, for these people have a strange way of putting the best work on the ceilings, and such high ceilings they are.

I saw St. Peter's Sunday. Tried to go to high mass, but the others got so impatient lest we miss out on an art gallery, where we were to meet the crowd and see some of the usual immortal things, and I was a little weary, for there are no seats in the great church, except in one small chapel, and we left too soon.

The great building is much more impressive within than without, because the size of the wings rather dwarfs the dome until you stand under it and look up. The sides are lined with tombs and monuments to various popes, I never imagined there could be so many. Then there is an altar to each nearby. Some of the altar pictures are copies of great ones done in mosaic very skillfully. There are angels around the tops of the pillars and the walls are composed of beautiful marbles in designs. The central altar under the dome is just above the tomb of St. Peter. We descended marble steps between unique old lamps which burn constantly, except on good Friday, and gazed through a gold lattice at a little box containing the pope's stole, and below is the resting place of St. Peter. Right before it is a huge kneeling figure of Pope Sextus VI, his beautiful robe, all one piece of marble, is covered with flowers (carved). Everywhere is the coat of arms of the pope—the keys crossed above the triple crown. The pontiff's chair at the end of the nave is some ten feet in air, gold, supported by the figures of priests, and the scepter and crown on the seat. Not a real seat for the pontiff, of course.

I shall omit descriptions of art galleries. There are plenty here and in every city I go to about a certain number, just to see the greatest things, and after I have found my favorites depart to really see Italy. I am surprised to find my interest in statuary really greater than most of these artists, because I have studied it from earliest development in archaeology.

Sunday afternoon I visited the monastery of the Capicini monks. They have the most extraordinary catacombs. The basement or first floor is the burial ground. They are interred for a certain length of time, then removed and the bones used to decorate the several little rooms. To say the effect is grewsome expresses it lightly. On two sides the large bones, interspersed with skulls (later labeled), are stacked like cord wood, leaving alcoves in which the better preserved victims recline or stand and leer at onlookers. Beautiful floral designs of fingers and other small bones decorate the ceiling, and an hourglass in one room is quite real. In several are most unique hanging lamps, all real bone. The floors of the little rooms contain the graves, closely packed in, of those yet allowed to sleep in peace.

The monks who showed us around (I went a second time to take Cousin George), are fine looking, happy sort of fellows, who seemed rather to enjoy our exclamations of surprise than to dread being the cause some distant day. One of the upright figures leaned over and laughed so that passersby were compelled to laugh, though chills ran down their spines as they did.

I also saw the sacred steps brought from Jerusalem which pilgrims go up on knees. They are covered with wood, of course, and are in a very old chapel.

We left Rome on Monday afternoon, arriving here in about four hours. It was another much dreaded trip that turned out nicely. We came through a rain as we approached Florence and found it delightfully cool. In fact, it has been quite cool at night. The sun is hot at noonday, but in the shade the heat is not bad.

We took a ride to Pisa today. It was great. But I must cease, as my letters to you are becoming a book by now, and my diary is lagging behind and must be caught up before we leave for Venice tomorrow. We have been troubled with mosquitoes quite badly here, and fear there will be more in Venice. If so we will only stay a couple of days and hasten on toward Switzerland, and the thought pleases me. The weather has been bad in Switzerland lately, rainy and warm, and for that reason Mr. Watson, our leader, fears we may not want to stay long, but if everything strikes us right he may change the route and stay longer, then go direct to Paris. The heat does not affect me, so am not worrying about the itinerary.

THE BEST FAIR YET

THE MARYVILLE STREET FAIR TO BE THE BEST EVER HELD.

LOTS OF GOOD FEATURES

Exhibits of Poultry, Fruits and Farm Products, Machinery, and Many Things of Interest.

The street fair will soon be here, only a week from next Monday, and, according to present indications, it will be by far the best fair that Maryville has ever given. The fair is to last one week, from September 16 to 21.

Some of the features of the fair will be the exhibits that will be on display. For instance, there will be the poultry show. A number of entries have already been received for this show. There will be the fruit and vegetable display. There will also be an exhibition of farm and home machinery, consisting of farm machinery, lightning rods, displays by the Maryville hardware stores and other machinery. In this exhibition tent will be a display by the Electric Light company, the Free Light Acetylene Light company, and by the telephone companies, and a sewing demonstration.

As to the entertaining features of the fair, they will be far above the average and will be up to the standard. There will be eight free acts daily, three bands, two of which will be the Maryville Concert band and the Missouri Ladies' Military band. There will be an automobile parade, fraternal parade, a horse show ,pony show, the public wedding and the children's day parade. In addition to the free attractions there will be a number of first class paid shows.

The poultry show is under the supervision of E. L. Andrews. No entry fee will be charged, and all of the fowls will be on display in a big tent and will be properly fed and cared for.

The only requirements are that birds must be shown in exhibition coops of regulation size and conformity. Parties who wish can buy new coops at the tent or rent them for the week. Pen coops large enough for five birds rent for the week for 50 cents. Trio coops for three birds or pairs at 30 cents. If you have your own coops, you will be at no expense whatever.

Owing to the early date of the fair most birds will be under weight. No birds will be weighed, but will be judged by comparison. Chickens will be entered in trios and pens only. Turkeys, geese and ducks in pairs only.

No premiums will be offered on single birds. All entries must be made on Monday September 16.

A competent judge, D. C. Mohler, a member of the A. P. A. association, has been secured to place the ribbons, and a fair and square deal will be the motto. The committee has set aside a liberal amount of cash for the premiums.

Cash premiums will be given as follows:

Trio—One cock and two hens, 1 year old and over, any variety.

First premium	$1.00
Second premium	.50
Third premium	.25

Pen—One cockerel and four pullets, under 1 year old, any variety.

First premium	$1.00
Second premium	.50
Third premium	.25

On turkeys, geese and ducks, any variety, young or old, pen pair.

First premium	$1.00
Second premium	.50
Third premium	.25

This will in no way conflict with the regular Northwest Missouri Poultry Show to be held December 17 to 21. For general information see E. L. Andrews.

Miss Katherine Brown of Hopkins visited in Maryville over Tuesday night and went to St. Joseph Wednesday morning for a day's visit. She is on her way to Trenton, where she is a teacher in the public schools.

Miss Nannie McNeal left Wednesday morning for a several days' stay in St. Joseph and Kansas City.

CONTRACTS SIGNED

ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY GET ENOUGH CONSUMERS FOR PLANT

TO FURNISH STEAM HEAT

Work Will Start in Two Weeks and Service is to Be Given by the Middle of Next Month.

The Electric Light company will install a heating plant in Maryville, so it was announced today, as enough customers had been secured to warrant the investment by the light company. The machinery will be here in about two weeks and will cost in the neighborhood of $17,000.

Service will not be given until about the middle of October. Conduits to convey the steam will be laid in the business section of the city and will be carried to the business houses that signed the contract to have this heat along Fifth street from Buchanan to Main, Main street from the postoffice to the light company's office, Fourth street from Main to Market, and Third street from Main to Buchanan.

D. D. Hayward, representing the American District Steam Heating company at Lockport, N. Y., who is to furnish the system to be used and who has been helping Manager C. C. Hellmers of the Light company in getting customers for this service, said today that by installing this system of heating in Maryville and the shortness of time it took to get the property owners interested in it show the progressiveness of the city. Other cities have the same system, and the proposed rates here are to be cheaper than they have at St. Joseph, Sedalia, Excelsior Springs and a number of other places.

A building 132x24 feet would cost approximately $85 to $90 per year to heat. The estimated cost for heating the court house is $500, and the county court, in session this week, signed a contract for this new system of heating. Last year the county spent about $100 more for coal than the amount they will have to pay for this heat.

The scale of charges is a "sliding scale," and ranges from 70 cents per 1,000 pounds condensation per month for the small consumer to 40 cents for the large customer. The company is to install service to the curb line free, from which point the pipes cost from $2 per foot for 2-inch pipe to $3.50 per foot for 4-inch pipe.

NOT PRACTICAL FOR DITCH.

Dynamite Can't Be Used for Deepening Drainage Ditch Here—Board Investigating a New Machine.

J. H. Nolen of Jefferson City, special agent of the state drainage commission, who was in Maryville last week inspecting the 102 drainage ditch, says that it would be impractical to use dynamite to make the ditch deeper. He conducted several experiments here with dynamite on the ditch.

The ditch should be four feet deeper and then it would carry the water from the river.

The drainage board intends to make the ditch deeper, and are now investigating the merits of a draw boat, making the ditch fifteen feet wide at the top, three feet at the bottom and an average of ten feet deep. The boat can work without the use of water.

The ditch extends from the Iowa line to the Carr bridge, south of Maryville, a distance of twenty miles. It hasn't been the success it should on account of not being deep enough. By hiring a boat that the board is now investigating the cost per acre would be $8, while by getting a dredge boat the cost would exceed this several dollars.

Candidates Are Filing.

Several candidates filed Tuesday and Wednesday with Recorder Wray. E. F. Wolfert, in his race for county treasurer, spent $44.60, and S. H. Williams spent $57.80. Thomas Groves, for judge of the county court from the south district, spent $9.25.

DEMOCRATS MAKE GAIN IN VERMONT

Returns from the state election in Vermont Tuesday show a 25 per cent loss by the Republicans as compared to the 1910 vote, and a gain of 13 per cent by the Democrats. The greater part of the Republican loss, however, went to the Progressives, but there were evidently some Republicans that voted the Democratic ticket to make that gain for them.

Returns on governor from all except fourteen small towns gave:

Fletcher, Republican	25,072
Howe, Democrat	19,472
Metzger, Progressive	15,070

The Democratic leaders are very happy over the Vermont result, showing as it did, decided gains over two and four years ago. They also pointed out that these gains had been made, despite the claims of the Progressive speakers that the Progressive party would recruit some of its strength from the Democrats. Progressive leaders, however, claimed they were greatly pleased with the result.

Many Republican leaders claimed that the threatening weather contributed to the falling off in the party vote. These men stated that the registered vote of Vermont was close to 120,000 and that had weather conditions been fair the party would have rolled up more than 40,000 for Mr. Fletcher.

FIELD-LIPPMAN STORE TO MOVE.

Owing to an Increase in Business, Will Change Its Location to South Main Street.

The Field-Lippman piano store will move in a few weeks to the Zook building on South Main, which has recently undergone a number of repairs and has a new store front, which is a beauty. The lease was signed Wednesday. The change in location of the store is on account of an increase in business, and the West Third street store building is not large enough.

Mr. Johnson arrived here about a week ago from California, where he had been visiting for several months with a niece. He is the owner of land near Hopkins and had come back to Missouri on business.

NEW FEATURE NEXT

NEXT WEEK'S BARGAIN DAY WILL HAVE A NEW FEATURE.

AN EXPERIENCE MEETING

Merchants Talk Over the Results of the Bargain Day Offers and Plan to Please Their Patrons.

A number of the merchants interested in the sales day held an "experience" meeting Tuesday night in the Commercial club rooms. The meeting was purely informal and was held at the request of Secretary John Hoffman. Various phases of the sales day were discussed, suggestions offered for future days and results of the past five days given in heart to heart talks. Some of the merchants are said to have met with poor results, but none of those present Tuesday night had anything but words of praise for the sales day proposition.

The merchants present were among the ones who are making a special study of what to offer, how to offer it and then compare results with the same day of the week or month in previous years. The results in some cases were astonishing. One firm had sold $1,000 more on the four sales days than they had on corresponding days in 1911. One firm sold more than twice as many goods on the day of the colored celebration as they did on the Fourth of July, when four times the number of people were in town, and when the crowd was held around the court house square. Another way of estimating results was given by comparing Wednesday (sales day) with Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of the same week, when sales ordinarily on those days would run about equal. A special instance was given in which the sales were double on sales days as compared with other days.

It was decided to offer a new feature for the next sales day, the details being left for the secretary to work out and announce in the sales day advertisement which will appear Friday.

BIG LAND SALE.

W. W. Jones Sells His Farm, North of Maryville.

W. W. Jones, through the Rhoades Land and Improvement company, sold his fine farm of 200 acres Tuesday to B. M. Hughes of Burlington Junction. The land is four and one-half miles north of Maryville and is regarded as one of the best farms in the county. The price paid was $25,000. The sale was brought about by the Rhodes Land and Improvement company, who recently opened an office on South Main street, over Hotchkin's variety store. This new firm comes well recommended as business men of high character and as good rustlers. They sold 141 acres for Rhodes & Sayler of Burlington Junction last week to L. E. Carpenter of Maryville for a consideration of $14,100. They are out for business and would be glad to meet any one wanting to sell or buy real estate.

SEE IF YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED.

If Cross, Feverish, Bilious, Give Delicious "Syrup of Figs" to Cleanse It's Little Bowels.

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's insides, the stomach, liver and thirty feet of bowels are clogged up with putrifying waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When your child is listless, drooping, pale, doesn't sleep soundly or eat heartily or is cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you surely will have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed. A little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

DEMOCRATIC TEXT BOOK.

If Any Want a Copy They Can Get the Same at Chicago or New York Headquarters.

The "High Cost of Living" is the keynote of the Democratic text book for 1912, issued today by the Democratic national committee. The fallacy of a protective tariff is exposed in a series of articles prepared by experts who have made a special study of the numerous schedules of the Payne-Aldrich bill. Under the headings "The High Cost of Living," "Wool the Keystone of the Arch," "Cotton Manufactures," "Tariff Board a Fraud," "How Tariff Was Raised on Cotton," "Dolliver on Protection," "Protection and Farmer," "Taft's Best Law Ever," "The Family Sugar Bowl," "How Prices Have Soared," "Tariff and Manufacturers," "The Tariff in the Home," "Would Save $20,000,000,000," "United States Consumers Pay Piper," the system of protection is attacked from every angle. It is the most comprehensive and carefully prepared exposure of its kind ever made from any political text book.

The trusts are taken care of in an able fashion. There is an article bristling with new facts concerning the famous absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the United States Steel corporation in 1907; the report of the harvester trust, which President Roosevelt held up at the request of George W. Perkins, together with the correspondence thereon, are published in full. The result of the Stanley investigation of the United States steel corporation is taken care of in two articles—"The Greatest of Trusts" and "How Interests Control." The interesting features of the book are "The True Roosevelt, by William H. Taft," and "The True Taft, by Theodore Roosevelt." These articles are simply compilations of extracts from the speeches of these two men delivered in 1908 and 1912. They make a novel and amusing exhibit.

The data on the life and work of Governor Wilson and Governor Marshall is very complete. The story of the former's life was written by William Bayard Hale, the widely known magazine writer. The laws that these two men have caused to be enacted for the benefit of labor, and the public health are treated special. There are many other articles giving information concerning practically every subject that may be discussed in the campaign.

In getting out the book so early the Democratic national committee has not only beaten the Republican and third term parties, but has broken all Democratic records. In former campaigns this book has appeared the latter part of September or the first of October. The text book committee which had charge of the preparation of the book was composed of Josephus Daniels, chairman of the bureau of publicity; James T. Lloyd, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, and Robert Wickliffe Woolley. The latter was the editor in charge of the work.

Typographically the book is said by experts to be the best one ever turned out by a campaign committee. The price of the book is 25 cents, and orders will be filled from either the Chicago or New York Democratic national headquarters.

SOUR STOMACH? GOT INDIGESTION ALSO?

"Pape's Diapepsin" Makes Upset Stomachs Feel Fine in Five Minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for indigestion or gastritis or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Maryville People Know How to Save It.

Many Maryville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has cured thousands of kidney sufferers.

The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

Mrs. W. M. Newman, Chestnut street, Savannah, Mo., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been of more benefit to me than any other kidney remedy I have ever used, and in view of this fact I willingly recommend them. I was caused much suffering from pains in my shoulders, and morning on arising I felt tired and languid. I was also bothered by difficulty with the kidney secretions. Hearing Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of, I got a box and soon after beginning their use I was relieved. Another member of my family has also taken this remedy with satisfactory results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, sole agents for the United States.

TROOPS NOW HOLD MICHIGAN PRISON

Governor Osborn in Charge With Militia and Picked Riflemen.

CONVICTS PUT UP FIERCE FIGHT

Sixty-Two Armed Prisoners Made Break for Liberty—Interior of Prison Wrecked—Pretty Theories Ruined.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 4.—Five companies, 600 men, of the state militia, with picked riflemen from several other companies, are in charge of the state prison where 62 armed convicts were overpowered after a fierce fight with the troops, city firemen, guards and citizens. Gov. Chase S. Osborn is in personal charge of the troops, having arrived here after a hurried trip from the Upper Peninsula. The troops have been ordered out for a week.

The interior of the prison was wrecked in the fight. The convicts, after their rush from the "bullpen," armed with knives, hammers, barrel staves and other weapons, entered the dining room.

Gorged Themselves.

They found food in the storehouse and gorged themselves, while others took turns in breaking the furniture and fixtures in the dining room and kitchen.

A hurried call was sent for the city fire department, and citizens were rushed to the prison and pressed into service. A short time later the two local companies of the state militia arrived, with orders to shoot to kill. Three prisoners had escaped over the wall before the troops arrived. Peter Matool, a Detroit convict, was shot while attempting to scale the prison wall. He probably will die.

Handcuffs and Chains Used.

The convicts who participated in the riot now are lodged in separate cells. They are locked in handcuffs and log irons and chained to the cell doors.

The 62 convicts who made the break for liberty are the most desperate in the institution. They have been the leader in the riots at the prison, which started with the attack on the steward in the dining room last Friday. They were lodged in the part of the prison known as the "bullpen."

That so many men were placed in the bullpen was the error which caused the outbreak. The convicts were crowded into the small cells, five or six deep.

Walls Gave Way.

At a signal, the convicts in each cell rushed one of the walls. The walls gave way, and all except one or two escaped into the yard. Warden Simpson fears another outbreak.

Gov. Osborn said: "The warden and members of the board have been too easy. No men could have tried harder than they to work out successful management of the prison under the new system of idealism, humanism and penology. It has failed. The convicts have had a hand in the running the institution long enough. From now on the warden and board will run it. They must run in."

PRESIDENT GREETS CHEMISTS

Foreign Delegates to Eighth International Congress Entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Taft.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Six hundred foreign delegates to the eighth international congress of applied chemistry, together with nearly a thousand American chemists, were officially welcomed today by President Taft, Mrs. Taft and many prominent members of Washington's diplomatic corps. The delegates' stay in Washington will be largely taken up with social diversions, their business meeting being scheduled elsewhere.

President Taft in the course of his remarks reviewed the great strides made in manufacturing chemistry, and paid a personal tribute to the many distinguished scientists present. President William H. Nichols of the international congress replied on behalf of the chemists.

Columbia university, New York, has been chosen as the theater for the business sessions of the congress, which begins Friday. Afterward the foreign delegates will make a tour of the country.

OKLAHOMA MAN CUT TO PIECES

Woman Phoned Police of Crime and Disappeared—Suspect Under Arrest.

Oklahoma City, Ok., Sept. 4.—The detective force is trying to solve the mystery in the death of John Bowman, a machinist. He was found in an alley with his throat cut. The body was hacked to pieces. A woman telephoned to the police that Bowman had been killed. Bowman died on the way to a hospital. The police arrested John Rainey whose clothes were covered with blood. He is held as a suspect. The officer who took the telephone message declares that he recognized the woman's voice, but she has not yet been found.

ONE DYNAMITER ADMITS GUILT

Spectators in Boston Courtroom Were Astonished.

TOOK EXPLOSIVE TO LAWRENCE

Following Plea of Wool Trust President, D. J. Collins Startled All in Room by Saying "I'm Guilty, I Guess."

Boston, Sept. 4.—Charged with conspiracy to plant dynamite in the great textile strike at Lawrence, Mass., last January, to influence public opinion against the idle operatives, William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company—the wool trust—was arraigned in the Suffolk county superior court. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000 bail for trial.

With him were arraigned Frederick Atteaux, a close friend of his, and a dealer in dye stuffs and other mill supplies. Atteaux was named in a secret indictment returned last week. He surrendered, illness having confined him to his home for the last few weeks.

Collins Springs Surprise.

Dennis J. Collins, a Cambridge dog fancier, who is accused of having taken the dynamite to Lawrence from Quincy, Mass., also was arrested. His response when asked to plead startled the spectators in the courtroom. He said:

"I am guilty, I guess—the way they put it up to me."

By suggestion of the prosecutor however, a plea of not guilty was entered, and Collins, being unable to furnish $6,000 bail, was remanded to prison. His surprising plea is explained by the fact that he is expected to be a star witness for the state. In fact, with the expectation that he might be induced to take such action, District Attorney Pelletier had his bail reduced to $1,500.

More Evidence Being Prepared.

Meanwhile two investigations of other phases of the dynamite planting were in progress. District Attorney Pelletier was preparing to present to the Suffolk county grand jury evidence against other mill men in which a reporter for a Boston paper is involved. This reporter was an intimate friend of Lawrence mill officials and of John J. Breen, a Lawrence undertaker who has been convicted of planting dynamite by an Essex county grand jury and fined $500.

As soon as the explosive had been discovered in tenements of Lawrence strikers, after Breen had described its location to the police, the Boston paper appeared upon the streets of Lawrence, 50 miles away, with a full account of the affair. It is the theory of the prosecutor that Breen told the reporter in advance and that perhaps the reporter had another motive in the matter than obtaining an exclusive piece of news.

United States District Attorney French, acting on orders from Washington, started an investigation of the shipment of dynamite on the trucks of a freight car that passed through Lawrence on the way to Philadelphia. The car contained woolen goods and 15 sticks of the explosive were found under it.

FLOOD DEATH LIST INCREASES

More Bodies Found in Three States—First Reports Greatly Underestimated Damage.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 4.—There were 40 more found dead in the floods in western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and eastern Ohio. The damage to property will reach over $2,000,000.

Many cities spent the night in total darkness, electric and gas plants being flooded.

Among the larger towns which suffered from the rise of the water were Washington, Beaver, Burgettstown, Carnonsburg and several smaller places in the Chartiers, Cherry and Beaver valleys of western Pennsylvania, while in West Virginia, Colliers and the surrounding territory suffered a great loss.

In the various localities attempts are being made to take care of the homeless and to repair the damage. Crews of railroad men are hard at work putting tracks in shape. Traffic practically has been at a standstill for the past 48 hours.

LYNCHING PLANS ABANDONED

Citizens of Hollister, Mo., Who Threatened Violence to Murderer, Made No Assault on Jail.

Springfield, Mo., Sept. 4.—The aroused citizens of Hollister, Mo., who were rumored to be planning an attempt to lynch E. T. Dickens failed to make any effort to storm the Branson jail, where Dickens is confined.

Dickens, so it is said, stabbed August Dorste to death in Dorste's blacksmith shop Saturday.

Authorities say the Branson jail will be kept under heavy guard until after Dickens' hearing, when he will be brought here.

BLACK HAND WORRIES JOHN D

THREATENING LETTERS TERRORIZE OIL KING.

Demand Made for Millions on Penalty of Death—Some Mailed From Palermo, Italy.

New York, Sept. 4.—It is learned that the threatening letters that have terrorized John D. Rockefeller and his son at their home in the Pocantico Hills are genuine black hand affairs.

The letters threaten kidnaping and murder for the oil king and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the two youngest children of John D., Jr., who are now ill of measles at the Kent House, a sort of nursery on the grounds not far from their father's residence.

Some of the letters have come by mail. One sent to the oil king was mailed from Palermo, Italy, where Lieut. Petrosino of the New York city police was murdered while seeking to expose and rout the auxiliaries in Italy of the black hand cliques in America. It demanded blackmail in the sum of many million dollars and ordered Rockefeller to open correspondence immediately through a named channel.

The reason for the alarm in regard to these letters was that in mysterious fashion they have found their way within the estate at night, the bearers making their way past the guards and leaving the letters on the very doorstep of John D. Rockefeller Jr.'s, house and that of Superintendent Briggs.

Meantime, the ordinary force of four private watchmen has been increased to 18, all negroes, armed with repeating rifles and revolvers and complimented by five Great Dane dogs.

SCIENTISTS MEET IN SCOTLAND

British Association Opens 82d Annual Session With Largest Attendance in History.

Dundee, Scotland, Sept. 4.—The British Association opened its 82d congress here today with the largest roster of scientists ever listed in the history of the organization.

This large attendance was credited to a program of exceeding attractiveness to the men of science, among the numbers being addresses and discussions on the origin of life, mathematics, physics, chemistry, geology, zoology, geography, economic science and statistics, anthropology, botany and educational science, and agriculture. Prof. E. A. Schafer of Edinburgh, president of the physiological section, devoted his entire address to the problem of the origin of life.

The social part of the association's program is also a full one. The last occasion on which Dundee entertained the members was in 1867, and the 1912 program is an earnest of the city's appreciation of the compliment paid to it.

COLORADO TO KANSAS ON POP-POP

Couple Arrived Safely at Erie, for Visit, After Long Motor Cycle Trip.

Erie, Kan., Sept. 4.—Riding all the way from Colorado Springs, Col., on a motor cycle, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Barnhardt have just arrived here. They did not have an accident until they reached Chanute where their motor cycle skidded on the wet pavement and threw them. Neither was injured, but a broken pedal resulted.

They left Colorado Springs Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, and the speedometer when they arrived here register 755 miles. Mrs. Barnhardt rides on a seat behind her husband.

"We have had an excellent trip," Mr. Barnhardt said. "We followed the new Santa Fe Trail from Colorado to Emporia, and found the roads excellent." They are visiting his uncles, Ed and Ralph Barnhardt, here.

Heavy Vote in Vermont.

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 4.—The heaviest early vote ever known in the state was cast. The polls opened at 6 o'clock and it was generally believed the total vote will exceed 20,000 despite the fact that a three-day rainstorm still was beating down on both sides of the Green mountains.

FIRE DESTROYS BEACH RESORT

Flames Spread Rapidly and Much Other Property Was in Danger.

LOSS MORE THAN TWO MILLIONS

Many Thrilling Escapes—Entire Seventh Regiment Guarding Ruins—Fire Still Burning at a Late Hour.

Los Angeles, Sept. 4.—Fire which originated from a defective flue at the Casino cafe on the pleasure pier at Ocean park at 5 o'clock caused one death and property loss estimated at $2,250,000. For a time it threatened to devastate the twin beach resorts of Ocean Park and Venice, 18 miles from Los Angeles.

High wind spread the flames so rapidly that seven men were caught at the end of the Frazier pier, on which the Casino is located, and were forced to jump into the breakers. Six were rescued by life guards who put out in boats. E. W. Leach, chef of the Casino cafe, was drowned.

Wind Aids Firemen.

The flames spread rapidly throughout the concession district along the water front, sweeping everything from the Dragon Gorge, a huge roller coaster, down toward Venice. The big Ocean park bath house and plunge seemed to check their progress and the wind died down, giving the fire department, augmented by five companies from Los Angeles, an opportunity to get the fire under control.

After the flames had destroyed virtually everything on the Frazier pier, they attacked the Decatur hotel which was burned.

Nine babies, including one Japanese infant, weighing 14 ounces, were saved from the "baby incubator" on the pier by Frederick House. The babies were taken in the metal cases of the incubators and carried safely off the blazing pier.

Pray During Fire.

Catholics gathered in St. Clemons church and at 6:30 o'clock prayers were said by Father Hennessey. The church bells called those who had lost their all and those whose homes were threatened. The wind seemed to shift just at this time and although embers were falling all around, the church escaped ignition. Its yard had been made a storage place for tons of household goods.

The heaviest loss was suffered by the Frazier Million Dollar Pier company. The pier and buildings on it were valued at $750,000. The damage to other buildings and furnishing is estimated at $1,500,000. The building and plant of the Ocean Park Journal was destroyed, with a loss of $25,000. The Decatur hotel was valued at $50,000.

All companies of the seventh regiment, California national guard, in Los Angeles and vicinity were ordered to Ocean Park to guard the ruins.

The fire was still burning in a number of places at a late hour but it was thought that it would be held within bounds unless the velocity of the wind increased.

Brotherhood of St. Andrew Meets.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—The Brotherhood of St. Andrew, which since its founding in this city thirty years ago has grown to great proportions and extended to all parts of the world, began its 27th annual convention here today. The sessions are being held at the University of Chicago and will continue through Sunday. The national council held two meetings today and all the delegates had luncheon on the University Commons. Edward H. Bonsall of Philadelphia is president of the Brotherhood.

MARTIAL LAW IS PROCLAIMED

FIRST TIME IN HISTORY OF WEST VIRGINIA.

Reign of Terror in Mining District Since Last April Results in Governor's Action.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 4.—The mine guard rule was suspended and Gov. Glasscock proclaimed martial law in the Paint creek and Cabin creek mining districts. The state troops have been there for a month. It is the first time that martial law was ever invoked in West Virginia.

The governor determined to issue the proclamation after a conference in which the destruction of railroad tracks was discussed. It was reported the tracks were torn up in many places along Cabin creek. Arms were confiscated by the soldiers and many were arrested for carrying arms.

The district is about 20 miles long and eight miles in width. At least 50 mine operators are included in the district. Since last April a reign of terror has prevailed there, marked by many clashes between striking miners and mine guards. Several men have been killed and wounded.

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made from Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs which unfortunately are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hair, however handsome it may be, makes a person look old. We all know the advantages of being young. Aside from the good impression a youthful appearance makes on others, simply knowing that you are "looking fit" gives one courage to undertake and accomplish things. So why suffer the handicap of looking old on account of gray hairs, when a simple remedy will give your hair youthful color and beauty in a few days' time?

Most people know that common garden sage acts as a color restorer and scalp tonic as well. Our grandmothers used a "Sage Tea" for keeping their hair dark, soft and luxuriant. In Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy we have an ideal preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp and thin, weak hair that is split at the ends or constantly coming out. A few applications of this valuable remedy will bring back the color, and in a short time it will remove every trace of dandruff and greatly improve the growth and appearance of the hair.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and notice the difference in your hair after a few days' treatment. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented.

How to See Colorado and the Yellowstone

By all means plan your summer vacation to include Colorado. A week of that glorious air will do you good for a lifetime. And that wonderful sky! Even Italy cannot match it for clear, deep, turquoise beauty. Then the mountains—they tower above you everywhere seeming to raise your spirit with them into the cool and restful cloudland. It's a new experience.

But you must also see the Yellowstone to complete your vacation. And it's easy if you take advantage of the reduced fare rates offered to summer tourists. Your ticket will take you through Colorado, the Regal Rockies and on to Salt Lake City and then swing you northward to the wonderful Yellowstone country. Neither pictures nor words can give you an idea of the beauty of the geysers, mud volcanoes, brilliantly colored rocks, mysterious rivers, thundering waterfalls, precipices, chasms, canons and the million-year old mountains you will see there. Your trip will give you a fresh enthusiasm.

The trip out and back is part of the fun, if you go on one of the Burlington's luxurious limiteds. It does not cost any more to go that way and there isn't any good reason why you shouldn't have the best there is.

I am employed by the Burlington Route to answer all your questions. I'll tell you the cost, the best places to see, send you our handsome folders, and even arrange to reserve a Pullman berth, if desired, if you'll tell me about when you would like to go. When you write me, a postal will do. W. E. Goforth, ticket agent, Burlington Route.

P. S.—The date of the Pike's Peak Region annual "Shan Kive" and Summer Carnival has been set as Aug. 27, 28 and 29. It will be held at Colorado Springs—Manitou, and will be larger and grander than ever. You ought to arrange to be there at that time, if possible.

LORD LOUGH HEARD SOME REAL MUSIC

How an Angel Unawares Happened to Visit an Amateur Musician.

By NORA CAVENDISH.

"James," I said, "there is someone coming up the drive."

"Not at home," he said absently "His lordship is away from home."

"Hardly," I observed gravely, "when his lordship can be seen from the drive, seated at the piano."

"Celebrities at home," murmured James. "Lord Lough and his favorite Bechstein 'Grand.'"

His right hand, rejoining the left upon the keyboard, now proclaimed to the world in general, in uncertain notes, its inclination to be "beside the seaside." A moment later the front door bell rang loudly. Then through the open window a voice could be heard inquiring whether "Mr. Vincent" was at home.

"Certainly not," murmured James. "Tim, we are saved. He has come to the wrong house."

Voices were still heard in consultation, and a few minutes later the butler appeared in the doorway.

"I beg your pardon, m'lord," he said, "A gentleman has mistaken this house for Mr. Vincent's. He wishes to know whether he may speak to your lordship for a moment."

James groaned. The sound must, I am sure, have been distinctly audible to the visitor on the doorstep.

"Show him in, Reid," he said, resignedly.

There was a brief interval, during which James picked gloomily at the piano, his right hand again haltingly reiterating that it would "like to be beside the sea." Then the door opened, and a tall, dark man, obviously a foreigner, appeared. Reid muttered an unintelligible foreign name, and vanished.

The stranger, with many bows and apologies, began explaining the reason of his "seemingly unwarrantable intrusion." Lord Lough must pardon him. He was on his way to Mr. Vincent's house, motoring from London. His motor had been left a mile back on the road, having completely run out of petrol. He had walked on, thinking this to be Mr. Vincent's house—only to learn from the butler that he was still five miles from his destination.

His Performance Was Out of the Ordinary.

A pause here, in which James, pursuing the course expected of him, proffered the loan of petrol and the services of his chauffeur to carry it down to the car. The stranger appeared overwhelmed with gratitude.

"I fear I have interrupted a musical afternoon," he observed, in his elaborate foreign manner. "I myself adore music. I beg you will continue to play."

Willing to spare the musical stranger, I interposed.

"Perhaps you yourself play?" I suggested, politely. "Lough and I are only amateurs."

James looked coldly at me.

"Speak for yourself, Tim," he said. "Personally, I have been slaving away at this blessed piano morning, noon and night for weeks, and I don't mind owning that I think my touch has improved.

"Practice is everything," the stranger assented. "I beg you will play, Lord Lough. It will give me great pleasure to hear you."

James looked pleased, and, with a slightly self-conscious air resumed his seat at the piano.

"What shall I play?" he inquired, carelessly. "I was just running through a two-step when you arrived."

The stranger looked rather puzzled as James struck a few faulty chords upon the piano.

"I seemed to know it—the tune you were playing when I entered," he observed, politely. "I have heard it, I think, on the—the—er—barrel organ. But something more classical would do greater justice to your talent; if you will allow me to make the suggestion."

"Classical?" said James, vaguely. "Ah, yes, yes. I dare say you are right. I've got some opera things somewhere, I believe. Tim, old man, just have a look round while I start away with this." He hurriedly arranged upon the piano a composition entitled "Le Ballet des Sylphes," while the stranger seated himself in an attitude of polite attention upon a distant sofa. The "Sylphes" appeared to have hardly mastered the intricacies of the ballet, and to have executed their steps in hob-nailed boots, judging from the hesitating yet thunderous sounds that the piano now gave forth. A well-meant, though unsuccessful attempt on the musician's part to turn over with his left hand while sustaining the "Sylphes" in their terpsichoral efforts with his right, brought the music in a confused heap upon the ground, and the melody to an abrupt conclusion.

"Devilish difficult thing that to play," James announced, breathlessly. "I ought to have got one of you to turn over for me."

The visitor politely expressed his regrets at not having observed Lord Lough's dilemma in time to offer his assistance, and begged that we might be favored with another tune. This, however, I felt must at all costs be avoided, and I suggested, hurriedly, that the visitor should now take a turn at the piano. James, with obvious reluctance, seconded my proposal, and the stranger, after much persuasion from me, and none from James, took his seat on the music stool.

I do not, like James, pretend to have any knowledge of music! but to my untutored ear his performance sounded something quite out of the ordinary. I glanced at James as our guest rose from the piano, and was certain from the look of annoyance on his face that he was equally impressed.

"Capital, capital," he said, airily. "I see you are quite a professional! I hope you will come over and play to us again some time when you are next in the neighborhood."

The tone of his voice seemed to express also the hope that such an event might occur only in the remote future.

The sound of a motor on the drive now reached our ears, and our guest, with elaborate bows, and many expressions of gratitude, prepared to take his leave. I accompanied him to the front door, where I stood and watched him getting into his car. At the last moment a thought seemed to strike him, and, pulling a letter case from his pocket, he produced from it a card.

"Pray express my thanks to Lord Lough," he said, with foreign accent, and presenting the card to me with a low bow. "I shall do myself the honor of calling to replace the petrol I have borrowed, on my return next week."

With more bows and a final wave of his hand he disappeared down the drive in his motor.

Then I glanced at the card.

When I had recovered from my surprise I re-entered the library, from which the strains of music warned me that the "Sylphes" were giving an encore performance of their ballet.

"James," I said, when the music ceased. "What did you think of our visitor. Played well, what?"

"Quite well, quite well." His tone lacked enthusiasm. "A slight want of execution, perhaps; but a painstaking performer."

"Painstaking," I said thoughtfully. "Yes, perhaps that is the word I wanted. Isn't Valaski, James, the new genius chap? That fellow's playing rather reminded me of his."

James smiled pityingly at me as he lightly struck a few false notes on the piano.

"Valaski, Tim," he said. "You wouldn't know Valaski from a barrel organ!"

I laid Valaski's card gently upon the piano, and went away to play the gramophone.

BUTTERMILK LONGEVITY AID

Cells in the Body That Attack Microbes Feed on the Fluid, Say the Scientists.

Buttermilk will prolong the human life for many years. That assertion has been proved by several of the leading physicians of the world—Pasteur and Metchnikoff of Paris.

In the blood are little cells known as leucocytes. Those cells are the scavengers of the body, and in their concave surfaces are able to grasp a germ or a foreign body and force its elimination from the human system. The leucocytes figuratively speaking are the home defenders of the body.

Under the microscope the home defenders can be seen flowing along in the blood streams. Suddenly they will stop as though they sensed some near danger. Changing their shape to that of a v they will penetrate the blood vessel wall and pick up a stray germ, probably a typhoid or one of the many other varieties.

When a person wounds the skin and the blood runs the home defenders rush to the afflicted part and project themselves into the surface of the abrasion, preventing the entrance of outside germ life. They give up their lives to attain their object and the hard little ridges felt on both sides of a slight wound are the leucocytes so tightly impacted that their lifeless bodies help form scar tissue.

As years pass that commendable action of sacrificing themselves so the human body may live ceases and the little friends of the body once known as home defenders turn into a lawless element, ravaging the body they once defended.

Metchnikoff and Pasteur found that buttermilk contained an element which prevented the leucocytes from ravaging the body. Experiments proved they would eat the buttermilk in preference to the human tissue.

JEFFERSON AS A NATURALIST

Carried Bones of Common Sloth to Philadelphia Supposing Them Those of Mammoth.

It is said that when Thomas Jefferson journeyed from Monticello to Philadelphia on his way to take the oath of office as vice president he carried a lot of bones in his baggage. The bones, alleged to be those of a mammoth, had been found in Greenbrier county, Virginia, and sent to Monticello, where they were set up by Jefferson, who, it appears, entertained a somewhat exaggerated notion of his attainments in natural history, and who stood sponsor for the bones as those of "a carnivorous clawed animal entirely unknown to science."

It was not until after Jefferson reached Philadelphia that he was undeceived, for at a glance the learned Doctor Wistar saw that they were the bones of the common sloth, several specimens of which he showed the Virginian. Jefferson, it is related, was greatly chagrined, especially as his discovery became known as Megalonyx jeffersonii.

It has been pointed out that, indirectly, no less a naturalist than the great Buffon may have been responsible for Jefferson's error. It was the Virginian's practice to send Buffon specimens and information, and with the subtle flattery of a courtier the French naturalist wrote:

"I should have consulted you, sir, before publishing my natural history, and then I should have been sure of the facts."

JUDGE LIKED GOOD SCRAP

Because Plaintiff Was Not Injured His Honor Discharged the Defendant.

In a case tried before a Maine justice of the peace, one Jones, a lumberman, pleaded guilty to assault upon one Libby, another woodsman. The justice seemed a bit perplexed how to proceed when no evidence had been produced, and finally called upon Libby to stand up. Libby stretched up his six feet of husky frame.

"Any bones broken?" asked the judge.

"Nary one," said Libby, shaking his head seriously.

"Any bruises, contusions, sprains or dislocations?"

"Nary one?" said the plaintiff, regretfully.

"Make your nose bleed?"

"Not a mite."

"Black your eyes?"

"Neither one."

"Why, you don't appear to be injured at all," said the judge in surprise.

"No, your honor," answered Libby. "He didn't injure me none, he only struck me a few times."

"Well," said the judge, slowly and with disgust showing in his accent, "when this court strikes a man that man always has at least one black eye. I'll assess the costs of this court, that's one dollar and twenty-one cents, on the defendant, but you don't get no damages for any such scrap."

High-Caste Pushcart Men.

At a railway station in Calcutta, early in the morning, a long train, consisting largely of third-class carriages, is made up, amid the clamor of disputes, invariably incident to any purchase in the Orient. My fellow-passengers, pilgrims on their way to the Holy City, are buying from venders greasy sweets or tough dough cakes indigestible to any but an oriental stomach. These venders are invariably of high caste, according to the Hindu system of social position, for no Hindu will buy food or drink from one of a lower caste than himself.

The great civilizer in India, however, as elsewhere, is the railway, which has made it necessary for the Brahman to sit next to the despised Sudra if he would travel. On all ordinary occasions, should the passengers of one compartment all be of one caste, they put their feet out of the window—for want of space—and sleep in peace and security. Should they be of different castes, however, all but the lowest, the Sudra, sit rigidly erect, guarding against defilement of their caste by a touch of their more unfortunate fellow-travelers.—Christian Herald.

TO BRING SUIT.

Those That Are On the Delinquent Tax List Will Be Sued This Week.

From what we heard at City Collector Grems' office, persons who are delinquent had better make it a point to see the collector this week, as he is preparing a list and the attorney will bring suit against eighty of the delinquent property owners. That means an additional expense that the property owner must pay.

Thankful for Patronage.

Miss Alma Nash, director of the Missouri Ladies' Military band of this city, wishes to extend sincere thanks to all the people who have in any way encouraged the organization, which will close the first year of its existence in September. Miss Nash and her band girls are preparing to start the second year with greater zeal and will give a minstrel show in October. They will go to St. Joseph in October to take part in the contest and are expecting to attend the world's fair in San Francisco in 1915.

The Ladies' Military band is especially grateful to the Woman's Relief Corps, the G. A. R. and the Owls lodge, who have been especially courteous to them.

The band's trip to the Guilford and Ravenwood picnic was delightful. The treatment they received from the people of those places exceeded anything they had expected. They were taken right into the homes of the people and treated as members of the family, and when they came home they were brought in automobiles. Who could think of better treatment than that?

And then the bands of the towns treated them with such fine courtesy. The last evening of the Ravenwood picnic the Ladies' band, the Ravenwood band and the Harmony church band played several numbers together, making one band of fifty-six pieces, and the directors took turns in directing the music.

Returned to St. Joseph.

Mrs. Donald Cady returned to her home in St. Joseph Wednesday morning, after a month's visit with her mother, Mrs. Martha T. Denny, and family. She was accompanied by her nieces, Evangeline and Lucile Speckerman of Rock Port, who have been visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Spickerman and Mrs. M. T. Denny. Their father, Rev. J. R. Spickerman, will come to St. Joseph to accompany them home.

Electric Fans at Prayer Meeting.

The mid-week services of the Presbyterian church will be resumed this evening. The topic for the service tonight will be "Over-Churching, and the Value of Church Federation." The service will be forty-five minutes in duration, and will be held in the auditorium in order that the electric fans may contribute to the comfort of those who attend.

To Go to Omaha.

Dr. Charles T. Bell and Dr. Wm. Wallis, Jr., will go to Omaha Thursday morning to attend the annual meeting of the Tri-State Surgical association, which will be in session in that city on Thursday and Friday.

Mrs. D. G. Danner and daughter, Miss Grace Danner, and Mrs. J. A. Walkinshaw, of Blanchard, Ia., were Maryville business visitors Wednesday. Miss Danner will begin study at the Conservatory.

MISS CORWIN SEES MUCH TO ADMIRE IN ITALY.

SEES MANY ART GALLERIES

The Catacombs Most Extraordinary—Effect is Grewsome, But Monks Are Fine Looking and Happy.

Today The Democrat-Forum continues the letter, under date of August 1, from Miss May Corwin, who at that time was writing from Florence, Italy. Her last letter told of her ride over the Appian way and appeared in the issue of Thursday, August 26:

We drove through some lovely country scenes, returning by the Nova Appia. They use pure white oxen through these parts of the country for all heavy work, and when plowing in the fields they look very picturesque. Another North Italian idea is a brightly colored protection for the drive of the water cart with mule trappings to match. The cover, much like a buggy top, is always whirled around to the side and looks like it was slightly tipsy and the man stands instead of sitting.

We returned to join the party at the old Roman Forum. Like Pompeii, I must say the pictures are correct. The only addition we had was the little street car partly down on one side, which had shot through the fence and disturbed the peace of the old ruins, beside injuring fourteen people whom it took through without admission fee, and causing a street car strike until brakes were put on all cars. It was a little rough on our pocketbooks to hire cabs, but not nearly so bad as the shaking up our systems would have had if we had bolted into some of the ancient strongholds thus. We would have added some remains, I suspect.

They showed us the tomb of Romulus and Remus, indicated by an inscription on one stone saying it would be made of black marble, and there was a piece of black marble, therefore no doubt could remain that they really lived. The old pillars standing in small groups to indicate a bygone temple were pathetic, but even as beautiful and majestic. I plucked a bay leaf from the tomb of Caesar. A large stone on which his body was burned had been used as an altar to him afterward. The forum extends for several blocks, ending in the arch of Titus, through which you look directly at the huge Colisseum. The column of Trajan at the forum of that emperor is very beautiful, as are all the triumphal arches in the old part of the city.

It is a beautiful city, each plazza containing either some old monument or a wonderfully wrought fountain. The profusion of water was a marvel to us, so lately from parched Spain. The public parks and museums are the gardens and palaces of all old families and are perfectly magnificent. One, the Borgere, is on one of the hills of the city, and the promenade gives a fine view of the country around. All these cities seem to be surrounded by mountains and these in turn are spotted with villas and monasteries.

We saw the Sistine chapel of the Vatican, that great creation of Titians. The altar piece all across one end, called 'Last Judgment," is the least pleasing. It is blackened in parts by incense smoke and Christ as a terrible judge is too energetic. We got mirrors and walked around staring at them in trance-like meditation, but they saved the much overworked neck, for these people have a strange way of putting the best work on the ceilings, and such high ceilings they are.

I saw St. Peter's Sunday. Tried to go to high mass, but the others got so impatient lest we miss out on an art gallery, where we were to meet the crowd and see some of the usual immortal things, and I was a little weary, for there are no seats in the great church, except in one small chapel, and we left too soon.

The great building is much more impressive within than without, because the size of the wings rather dwarfs the dome until you stand under it and look up. The sides are lined with tombs and monuments to various popes, I never imagined there could be so many. Then there is an altar to each nearby. Some of the altar pictures are copies of great ones done in mosaic very skillfully. There are angels around the tops of the pillars and the walls are composed of beautiful marbles in designs. The central altar under the dome is just above the tomb of St. Peter. We descended marble steps between unique old lamps which burn constantly, except on good Friday, and gazed through a gold lattice at a little box containing the pope's stole, and below is the resting place of St. Peter. Right before it is a huge kneeling figure of Pope Sextus VI, his beautiful robe, all one piece of marble, is covered with flowers (carved). Everywhere is the coat of arms of the pope—the keys crossed above the triple crown. The pontiff's chair at the end of the nave is some ten feet in air, gold, supported by the figures of priests, and the scepter and crown on the seat. Not a real seat for the pontiff, of course.

I shall omit descriptions of art galleries. There are plenty here and in every city I go to about a certain number, just to see the greatest things, and after I have found my favorites depart to really see Italy. I am surprised to find my interest in statuary really greater than most of these artists, because I have studied it from earliest development in archaeology.

Sunday afternoon I visited the monastery of the Capicini monks. They have the most extraordinary catacombs. The basement or first floor is the burial ground. They are interred for a certain length of time, then removed and the bones used to decorate the several little rooms. To say the effect is grewsome expresses it lightly. On two sides the large bones, interspersed with skulls (later labeled), are stacked like cord wood, leaving alcoves in which the better preserved victims recline or stand and leer at onlookers. Beautiful floral designs of fingers and other small bones decorate the ceiling, and an hourglass in one room is quite real. In several are most unique hanging lamps, all real bone. The floors of the little rooms contain the graves, closely packed in, of those yet allowed to sleep in peace.

The monks who showed us around (I went a second time to take Cousin George), are fine looking, happy sort of fellows, who seemed rather to enjoy our exclamations of surprise than to dread being the cause some distant day. One of the upright figures leaned over and laughed so that passersby were compelled to laugh, though chills ran down their spines as they did.

I also saw the sacred steps brought from Jerusalem which pilgrims go up on knees. They are covered with wood, of course, and are in a very old chapel.

We left Rome on Monday afternoon, arriving here in about four hours. It was another much dreaded trip that turned out nicely. We came through a rain as we approached Florence and found it delightfully cool. In fact, it has been quite cool at night. The sun is hot at noonday, but in the shade the heat is not bad.

We took a ride to Pisa today. It was great. But I must cease, as my letters to you are becoming a book by now, and my diary is lagging behind and must be caught up before we leave for Venice tomorrow. We have been troubled with mosquitoes quite badly here, and fear there will be more in Venice. If so we will only stay a couple of days and hasten on toward Switzerland, and the thought pleases me. The weather has been bad in Switzerland lately, rainy and warm, and for that reason Mr. Watson, our leader, fears we may not want to stay long, but if everything strikes us right he may change the route and stay longer, then go direct to Paris. The heat does not affect me, so am not worrying about the itinerary.

THE BEST FAIR YET

LOTS OF GOOD FEATURES

Exhibits of Poultry, Fruits and Farm Products, Machinery, and Many Things of Interest.

The street fair will soon be here, only a week from next Monday, and, according to present indications, it will be by far the best fair that Maryville has ever given. The fair is to last one week, from September 16 to 21.

Some of the features of the fair will be the exhibits that will be on display. For instance, there will be the poultry show. A number of entries have already been received for this show. There will be the fruit and vegetable display. There will also be an exhibition of farm and home machinery, consisting of farm machinery, lightning rods, displays by the Maryville hardware stores and other machinery. In this exhibition tent will be a display by the Electric Light company, the Free Light Acetylene Light company, and by the telephone companies, and a sewing demonstration.

As to the entertaining features of the fair, they will be far above the average and will be up to the standard. There will be eight free acts daily, three bands, two of which will be the Maryville Concert band and the Missouri Ladies' Military band. There will be an automobile parade, fraternal parade, a horse show ,pony show, the public wedding and the children's day parade. In addition to the free attractions there will be a number of first class paid shows.

The poultry show is under the supervision of E. L. Andrews. No entry fee will be charged, and all of the fowls will be on display in a big tent and will be properly fed and cared for.

The only requirements are that birds must be shown in exhibition coops of regulation size and conformity. Parties who wish can buy new coops at the tent or rent them for the week. Pen coops large enough for five birds rent for the week for 50 cents. Trio coops for three birds or pairs at 30 cents. If you have your own coops, you will be at no expense whatever.

Owing to the early date of the fair most birds will be under weight. No birds will be weighed, but will be judged by comparison. Chickens will be entered in trios and pens only. Turkeys, geese and ducks in pairs only.

No premiums will be offered on single birds. All entries must be made on Monday September 16.

A competent judge, D. C. Mohler, a member of the A. P. A. association, has been secured to place the ribbons, and a fair and square deal will be the motto. The committee has set aside a liberal amount of cash for the premiums.

Cash premiums will be given as follows:

Trio—One cock and two hens, 1 year old and over, any variety.

First premium	$1.00
Second premium	.50
Third premium	.25

Pen—One cockerel and four pullets, under 1 year old, any variety.

First premium	$1.00
Second premium	.50
Third premium	.25

On turkeys, geese and ducks, any variety, young or old, pen pair.

First premium	$1.00
Second premium	.50
Third premium	.25

This will in no way conflict with the regular Northwest Missouri Poultry Show to be held December 17 to 21. For general information see E. L. Andrews.

Miss Katherine Brown of Hopkins visited in Maryville over Tuesday night and went to St. Joseph Wednesday morning for a day's visit. She is on her way to Trenton, where she is a teacher in the public schools.

Miss Nannie McNeal left Wednesday morning for a several days' stay in St. Joseph and Kansas City.

CONTRACTS SIGNED

ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY GET ENOUGH CONSUMERS FOR PLANT

TO FURNISH STEAM HEAT

Work Will Start in Two Weeks and Service is to Be Given by the Middle of Next Month.

The Electric Light company will install a heating plant in Maryville, so it was announced today, as enough customers had been secured to warrant the investment by the light company. The machinery will be here in about two weeks and will cost in the neighborhood of $17,000.

Service will not be given until about the middle of October. Conduits to convey the steam will be laid in the business section of the city and will be carried to the business houses that signed the contract to have this heat along Fifth street from Buchanan to Main, Main street from the postoffice to the light company's office, Fourth street from Main to Market, and Third street from Main to Buchanan.

D. D. Hayward, representing the American District Steam Heating company at Lockport, N. Y., who is to furnish the system to be used and who has been helping Manager C. C. Hellmers of the Light company in getting customers for this service, said today that by installing this system of heating in Maryville and the shortness of time it took to get the property owners interested in it show the progressiveness of the city. Other cities have the same system, and the proposed rates here are to be cheaper than they have at St. Joseph, Sedalia, Excelsior Springs and a number of other places.

A building 132x24 feet would cost approximately $85 to $90 per year to heat. The estimated cost for heating the court house is $500, and the county court, in session this week, signed a contract for this new system of heating. Last year the county spent about $100 more for coal than the amount they will have to pay for this heat.

The scale of charges is a "sliding scale," and ranges from 70 cents per 1,000 pounds condensation per month for the small consumer to 40 cents for the large customer. The company is to install service to the curb line free, from which point the pipes cost from $2 per foot for 2-inch pipe to $3.50 per foot for 4-inch pipe.

NOT PRACTICAL FOR DITCH.

Dynamite Can't Be Used for Deepening Drainage Ditch Here—Board Investigating a New Machine.

J. H. Nolen of Jefferson City, special agent of the state drainage commission, who was in Maryville last week inspecting the 102 drainage ditch, says that it would be impractical to use dynamite to make the ditch deeper. He conducted several experiments here with dynamite on the ditch.

The ditch should be four feet deeper and then it would carry the water from the river.

The drainage board intends to make the ditch deeper, and are now investigating the merits of a draw boat, making the ditch fifteen feet wide at the top, three feet at the bottom and an average of ten feet deep. The boat can work without the use of water.

The ditch extends from the Iowa line to the Carr bridge, south of Maryville, a distance of twenty miles. It hasn't been the success it should on account of not being deep enough. By hiring a boat that the board is now investigating the cost per acre would be $8, while by getting a dredge boat the cost would exceed this several dollars.

Candidates Are Filing.

Several candidates filed Tuesday and Wednesday with Recorder Wray. E. F. Wolfert, in his race for county treasurer, spent $44.60, and S. H. Williams spent $57.80. Thomas Groves, for judge of the county court from the south district, spent $9.25.

DEMOCRATS MAKE GAIN IN VERMONT

Returns from the state election in Vermont Tuesday show a 25 per cent loss by the Republicans as compared to the 1910 vote, and a gain of 13 per cent by the Democrats. The greater part of the Republican loss, however, went to the Progressives, but there were evidently some Republicans that voted the Democratic ticket to make that gain for them.

Returns on governor from all except fourteen small towns gave:

Fletcher, Republican	25,072
Howe, Democrat	19,472
Metzger, Progressive	15,070

The Democratic leaders are very happy over the Vermont result, showing as it did, decided gains over two and four years ago. They also pointed out that these gains had been made, despite the claims of the Progressive speakers that the Progressive party would recruit some of its strength from the Democrats. Progressive leaders, however, claimed they were greatly pleased with the result.

Many Republican leaders claimed that the threatening weather contributed to the falling off in the party vote. These men stated that the registered vote of Vermont was close to 120,000 and that had weather conditions been fair the party would have rolled up more than 40,000 for Mr. Fletcher.

FIELD-LIPPMAN STORE TO MOVE.

Owing to an Increase in Business, Will Change Its Location to South Main Street.

The Field-Lippman piano store will move in a few weeks to the Zook building on South Main, which has recently undergone a number of repairs and has a new store front, which is a beauty. The lease was signed Wednesday. The change in location of the store is on account of an increase in business, and the West Third street store building is not large enough.

NEW FEATURE NEXT

NEXT WEEK'S BARGAIN DAY WILL HAVE A NEW FEATURE.

AN EXPERIENCE MEETING

Merchants Talk Over the Results of the Bargain Day Offers and Plan to Please Their Patrons.

A number of the merchants interested in the sales day held an "experience" meeting Tuesday night in the Commercial club rooms. The meeting was purely informal and was held at the request of Secretary John Hoffman. Various phases of the sales day were discussed, suggestions offered for future days and results of the past five days given in heart to heart talks. Some of the merchants are said to have met with poor results, but none of those present Tuesday night had anything but words of praise for the sales day proposition.

The merchants present were among the ones who are making a special study of what to offer, how to offer it and then compare results with the same day of the week or month in previous years. The results in some cases were astonishing. One firm had sold $1,000 more on the four sales days than they had on corresponding days in 1911. One firm sold more than twice as many goods on the day of the colored celebration as they did on the Fourth of July, when four times the number of people were in town, and when the crowd was held around the court house square. Another way of estimating results was given by comparing Wednesday (sales day) with Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of the same week, when sales ordinarily on those days would run about equal. A special instance was given in which the sales were double on sales days as compared with other days.

It was decided to offer a new feature for the next sales day, the details being left for the secretary to work out and announce in the sales day advertisement which will appear Friday.

The sale was brought about by the Rhodes Land and Improvement company, who recently opened an office on South Main street, over Hotchkin's variety store. SEE IF YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED.

If Cross, Feverish, Bilious, Give Delicious "Syrup of Figs" to Cleanse It's Little Bowels.

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's insides, the stomach, liver and thirty feet of bowels are clogged up with putrifying waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When your child is listless, drooping, pale, doesn't sleep soundly or eat heartily or is cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you surely will have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed. A little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

DEMOCRATIC TEXT BOOK.

If Any Want a Copy They Can Get the Same at Chicago or New York Headquarters.

The "High Cost of Living" is the keynote of the Democratic text book for 1912, issued today by the Democratic national committee. The fallacy of a protective tariff is exposed in a series of articles prepared by experts who have made a special study of the numerous schedules of the Payne-Aldrich bill. Under the headings "The High Cost of Living," "Wool the Keystone of the Arch," "Cotton Manufactures," "Tariff Board a Fraud," "How Tariff Was Raised on Cotton," "Dolliver on Protection," "Protection and Farmer," "Taft's Best Law Ever," "The Family Sugar Bowl," "How Prices Have Soared," "Tariff and Manufacturers," "The Tariff in the Home," "Would Save $20,000,000,000," "United States Consumers Pay Piper," the system of protection is attacked from every angle. It is the most comprehensive and carefully prepared exposure of its kind ever made from any political text book.

The trusts are taken care of in an able fashion. There is an article bristling with new facts concerning the famous absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the United States Steel corporation in 1907; the report of the harvester trust, which President Roosevelt held up at the request of George W. Perkins, together with the correspondence thereon, are published in full. The result of the Stanley investigation of the United States steel corporation is taken care of in two articles—"The Greatest of Trusts" and "How Interests Control." The interesting features of the book are "The True Roosevelt, by William H. Taft," and "The True Taft, by Theodore Roosevelt." These articles are simply compilations of extracts from the speeches of these two men delivered in 1908 and 1912. They make a novel and amusing exhibit.

The data on the life and work of Governor Wilson and Governor Marshall is very complete. The story of the former's life was written by William Bayard Hale, the widely known magazine writer. The laws that these two men have caused to be enacted for the benefit of labor, and the public health are treated special. There are many other articles giving information concerning practically every subject that may be discussed in the campaign.

In getting out the book so early the Democratic national committee has not only beaten the Republican and third term parties, but has broken all Democratic records. In former campaigns this book has appeared the latter part of September or the first of October. The text book committee which had charge of the preparation of the book was composed of Josephus Daniels, chairman of the bureau of publicity; James T. Lloyd, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, and Robert Wickliffe Woolley. The latter was the editor in charge of the work.

Typographically the book is said by experts to be the best one ever turned out by a campaign committee. The price of the book is 25 cents, and orders will be filled from either the Chicago or New York Democratic national headquarters.

SOUR STOMACH? GOT INDIGESTION ALSO?

"Pape's Diapepsin" Makes Upset Stomachs Feel Fine in Five Minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for indigestion or gastritis or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Maryville People Know How to Save It.

Many Maryville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has cured thousands of kidney sufferers.

The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

Mrs. W. M. Newman, Chestnut street, Savannah, Mo., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been of more benefit to me than any other kidney remedy I have ever used, and in view of this fact I willingly recommend them. I was caused much suffering from pains in my shoulders, and morning on arising I felt tired and languid. I was also bothered by difficulty with the kidney secretions. Hearing Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of, I got a box and soon after beginning their use I was relieved. Another member of my family has also taken this remedy with satisfactory results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, sole agents for the United States.

TROOPS NOW HOLD MICHIGAN PRISON

Governor Osborn in Charge With Militia and Picked Riflemen.

CONVICTS PUT UP FIERCE FIGHT

Sixty-Two Armed Prisoners Made Break for Liberty—Interior of Prison Wrecked—Pretty Theories Ruined.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 4.—Five companies, 600 men, of the state militia, with picked riflemen from several other companies, are in charge of the state prison where 62 armed convicts were overpowered after a fierce fight with the troops, city firemen, guards and citizens. Gov. Chase S. Osborn is in personal charge of the troops, having arrived here after a hurried trip from the Upper Peninsula. The troops have been ordered out for a week.

The interior of the prison was wrecked in the fight. The convicts, after their rush from the "bullpen," armed with knives, hammers, barrel staves and other weapons, entered the dining room.

Gorged Themselves.

They found food in the storehouse and gorged themselves, while others took turns in breaking the furniture and fixtures in the dining room and kitchen.

A hurried call was sent for the city fire department, and citizens were rushed to the prison and pressed into service. A short time later the two local companies of the state militia arrived, with orders to shoot to kill. Three prisoners had escaped over the wall before the troops arrived. Peter Matool, a Detroit convict, was shot while attempting to scale the prison wall. He probably will die.

Handcuffs and Chains Used.

The convicts who participated in the riot now are lodged in separate cells. They are locked in handcuffs and log irons and chained to the cell doors.

The 62 convicts who made the break for liberty are the most desperate in the institution. They have been the leader, in the riots at the prison, which started with the attack on the steward in the dining room last Friday. They were lodged in the part of the prison known as the "bullpen."

That so many men were placed in the bullpen was the error which caused the outbreak. The convicts were crowded into the small cells, five or six deep.

Walls Cave Way.

At a signal, the convicts in each cell rushed one of the walls. The walls gave way, and all except one or two escaped into the yard. Warden Simpson fears another outbreak.

Gov. Osborn said: "The warden and members of the board have been too easy. No men could have tried harder than they to work out successful management of the prison under the new system of idealism, humanism and penology. It has failed. The convicts have had a hand in the running the institution long enough. From now on the warden and board will run it. They must run in."

PRESIDENT GREETS CHEMISTS

Foreign Delegates to Eighth International Congress Entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Taft.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Six hundred foreign delegates to the eighth international congress of applied chemistry, together with nearly a thousand American chemists, were officially welcomed today by President Taft, Mrs. Taft and many prominent members of Washington's diplomatic corps. The delegates' stay in Washington will be largely taken up with social diversions, their business meeting being scheduled elsewhere.

President Taft in the course of his remarks reviewed the great strides made in manufacturing chemistry, and paid a personal tribute to the many distinguished scientists present. President William H. Nichols of the international congress replied on behalf of the chemists.

Columbia university, New York, has been chosen as the theater for the business sessions of the congress, which begins Friday. Afterward the foreign delegates will make a tour of the country.

OKLAHOMA MAN CUT TO PIECES

Woman Phoned Police of Crime and Disappeared—Suspect Under Arrest.

Oklahoma City, Ok., Sept. 4.—The detective force is trying to solve the mystery in the death of John Bowman, a machinist. He was found in an alley with his throat cut. The body was hacked to pieces. A woman telephoned to the police that Bowman had been killed. Bowman died on the way to a hospital. The police arrested John Rainey whose clothes were covered with blood. He is held as a suspect. The officer who took the telephone message declares that he recognized the woman's voice, but she has not yet been found.

ONE DYNAMITER ADMITS GUILT

Spectators in Boston Courtroom Were Astonished.

TOOK EXPLOSIVE TO LAWRENCE

Following Plea of Wool Trust President, D. J. Collins Startled All in Room by Saying "I'm Guilty, I Guess."

Boston, Sept. 4.—Charged with conspiracy to plant dynamite in the great textile strike at Lawrence, Mass., last January, to influence public opinion against the idle operatives, William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company—the wool trust—was arraigned in the Suffolk county superior court. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000 bail for trial.

With him were arraigned Frederick Atteaux, a close friend of his, and a dealer in dye stuffs and other mill supplies. Atteaux was named in a secret indictment returned last week. He surrendered, illness having confined him to his home for the last few weeks.

Collins Springs Surprise.

Dennis J. Collins, a Cambridge dog fancier, who is accused of having taken the dynamite to Lawrence from Quincy, Mass., also was arrested. His response when asked to plead startled the spectators in the courtroom. He said:

"I am guilty, I guess—the way they put it up to me."

By suggestion of the prosecutor however, a plea of not guilty was entered, and Collins, being unable to furnish $6,000 bail, was remanded to prison. His surprising plea is explained by the fact that he is expected to be a star witness for the state. In fact, with the expectation that he might be induced to take such action, District Attorney Pelletier had his bail reduced to $1,500.

More Evidence Being Prepared.

Meanwhile two investigations of other phases of the dynamite planting were in progress. District Attorney Pelletier was preparing to present to the Suffolk county grand jury evidence against other mill men in which a reporter for a Boston paper is involved. This reporter was an intimate friend of Lawrence mill officials and of John J. Breen, a Lawrence undertaker who has been convicted of planting dynamite by an Essex county grand jury and fined $500.

As soon as the explosive had been discovered in tenements of Lawrence strikers, after Breen had described its location to the police, the Boston paper appeared upon the streets of Lawrence, 50 miles away, with a full account of the affair. It is the theory of the prosecutor that Breen told the reporter in advance and that perhaps the reporter had another motive in the matter than obtaining an exclusive piece of news.

United States District Attorney French, acting on orders from Washington, started an investigation of the shipment of dynamite on the trucks of a freight car that passed through Lawrence on the way to Philadelphia. The car contained woolen goods and 15 sticks of the explosive were found under it.

FLOOD DEATH LIST INCREASES

More Bodies Found in Three States—First Reports Greatly Underestimated Damage.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 4.—There were 40 more found dead in the floods in western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and eastern Ohio. The damage to property will reach over $2,000,000.

Many cities spent the night in total darkness, electric and gas plants being flooded.

Among the larger towns which suffered from the rise of the water were Washington, Beaver, Burgettstown, Canonsburg and several smaller places in the Chartiers, Cherry and Beaver valleys of western Pennsylvania, while in West Virginia, Colliers and the surrounding territory suffered a great loss.

In the various localities attempts are being made to take care of the homeless and to repair the damage. Crews of railroad men are hard at work putting tracks in shape. Traffic practically has been at a standstill for the past 48 hours.

LYNCHING PLANS ABANDONED

Citizens of Hollister, Mo., Who Threatened Violence to Murderer, Made No Assault on Jail.

Springfield, Mo., Sept. 4.—The aroused citizens of Hollister, Mo., who were rumored to be planning an attempt to lynch E. T. Dickens failed to make any effort to storm the Branson jail, where Dickens is confined.

Dickens, so it is said, stabbed August Dorste to death in Dorste's blacksmith shop Saturday.

Authorities say the Branson jail will be kept under heavy guard until after Dickens' hearing, when he will be brought here.

BLACK HAND WORRIES JOHN D

THREATENING LETTERS TERRORIZE OIL KING.

Demand Made for Millions on Penalty of Death—Some Mailed From Palermo, Italy.

New York, Sept. 4.—It is learned that the threatening letters that have terrorized John D. Rockefeller and his son at their home in the Pocantico Hills are genuine black hand affairs.

The letters threaten kidnaping and murder for the oil king and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the two youngest children of John D., Jr., who are now ill of measles at the Kent House, a sort of nursery on the grounds not far from their father's residence.

Some of the letters have come by mail. One sent to the oil king was mailed from Palermo, Italy, where Lieut. Petrosino of the New York city police was murdered while seeking to expose and rout the auxiliaries in Italy of the black hand cliques in America. It demanded blackmail in the sum of many million dollars and ordered Rockefeller to open correspondence immediately through a named channel.

The reason for the alarm in regard to these letters was that in mysterious fashion they have found their way within the estate at night, the bearers making their way past the guards and leaving the letters on the very doorstep of John D. Rockefeller.

SCIENTISTS MEET IN SCOTLAND

British Association Opens 82d Annual Session With Largest Attendance in History.

Dundee, Scotland, Sept. 4.—The British Association opened its 82d congress here today with the largest roster of scientists ever listed in the history of the organization.

This large attendance was credited to a program of exceeding attractiveness to the men of science, among the numbers being addresses and discussions on the origin of life, mathematics, physics, chemistry, geology, zoology, geography, economic science and statistics, anthropology, botany and educational science, and agriculture. Prof. E. A. Schafer of Edinburgh, president of the physiological section, devoted his entire address to the problem of the origin of life.

The social part of the association's program is also a full one. The last occasion on which Dundee entertained the members was in 1867, and the 1912 program is an earnest of the city's appreciation of the compliment paid to it.

Couple Arrived Safely at Erie, for Visit, After Long Motor Cycle Trip.

Erie, Kan., Sept. 4.—Riding all the way from Colorado Springs, Col., on a motor cycle, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Barnhardt have just arrived here. They did not have an accident until they reached Chanute where their motor cycle skidded on the wet pavement and threw them. Neither was injured, but a broken pedal resulted.

They left Colorado Springs Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, and the speedometer when they arrived here register 755 miles. Mrs. Barnhardt rides on a seat behind her husband.

"We have had an excellent trip," Mr. Barnhardt said. "We followed the new Santa Fe Trail from Colorado to Emporia, and found the roads excellent." They are visiting his uncles, Ed and Ralph Barnhardt, here.

Heavy Vote in Vermont.

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 4.—The heaviest early vote ever known in the state was cast. The polls opened at 6 o'clock and it was generally believed the total vote will exceed 20,000 despite the fact that a three-day rainstorm still was beating down on both sides of the Green mountains.

FIRE DESTROYS BEACH RESORT

Flames Spread Rapidly and Much Other Property Was in Danger.

LOSS MORE THAN TWO MILLIONS

Many Thrilling Escapes—Entire Seventh Regiment Guarding Ruins—Fire Still Burning at a Late Hour.

Los Angeles, Sept. 4.—Fire which originated from a defective flue at the Casino cafe on the pleasure pier at Ocean park at 5 o'clock caused one death and property loss estimated at $2,250,000. For a time it threatened to devastate the twin beach resorts of Ocean Park and Venice, 18 miles from Los Angeles.

High wind spread the flames so rapidly that seven men were caught at the end of the Frazier pier, on which the Casino is located, and were forced to jump into the breakers. Six were rescued by life guards who put out in boats. E. W. Leach, chef of the Casino cafe, was drowned.

Wind Aids Firemen.

The flames spread rapidly throughout the concession district along the water front, sweeping everything from the Dragon Gorge, a huge roller coaster, down toward Venice. The big Ocean park bath house and plunge seemed to check their progress and the wind died down, giving the fire department, augmented by five companies from Los Angeles, an opportunity to get the fire under control.

After the flames had destroyed virtually everything on the Frazier pier, they attacked the Decatur hotel which was burned.

Nine babies, including one Japanese infant, weighing 14 ounces, were saved from the "baby incubator" on the pier by Frederick House. The babies were taken in the metal cases of the incubators and carried safely off the blazing pier.

Pray During Fire.

Catholics gathered in St. Clemons church and at 6:30 o'clock prayers were said by Father Hennessey. The church bells called those who had lost their all and those whose homes were threatened. The wind seemed to shift just at this time and although embers were falling all around, the church escaped ignition. Its yard had been made a storage place for tons of household goods.

The heaviest loss was suffered by the Frazier Million Dollar Pier company. The pier and buildings on it were valued at $750,000. The damage to other buildings and furnishing is estimated at $1,500,000. The building and plant of the Ocean Park Journal was destroyed, with a loss of $25,000. The Decatur hotel was valued at $50,000.

All companies of the seventh regiment, California national guard, in Los Angeles and vicinity were ordered to Ocean Park to guard the ruins.

The fire was still burning in a number of places at a late hour but it was thought that it would be held within bounds unless the velocity of the wind increased.

Brotherhood of St. Andrew Meets.

The sessions are being held at the University of Chicago and will continue through Sunday. The national council held two meetings today and all the delegates had luncheon on the University Commons. Edward H. Bonsall of Philadelphia is president of the Brotherhood.

MARTIAL LAW IS PROCLAIMED

FIRST TIME IN HISTORY OF WEST VIRGINIA.

Reign of Terror in Mining District Since Last April Results in Governor's Action.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 4.—The mine guard rule was suspended and Gov. Glasscock proclaimed martial law in the Paint creek and Cabin creek mining districts. The state troops have been there for a month. It is the first time that martial law was ever invoked in West Virginia.

The governor determined to issue the proclamation after a conference in which the destruction of railroad tracks was discussed. It was reported the tracks were torn up in many places along Cabin creek. Arms were confiscated by the soldiers and many were arrested for carrying arms.

The district is about 20 miles long and eight miles in width. At least 50 mine operators are included in the district. Since last April a reign of terror has prevailed there, marked by many clashes between striking miners and mine guards. Several men have been killed and wounded.

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made from Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs which unfortunately are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hair, however handsome it may be, makes a person look old. We all know the advantages of being young. Aside from the good impression a youthful appearance makes on others, simply knowing that you are "looking fit" gives one courage to undertake and accomplish things. So why suffer the handicap of looking old on account of gray hairs, when a simple remedy will give your hair youthful color and beauty in a few days' time?

Most people know that common garden sage acts as a color restorer and scalp tonic as well. Our grandmothers used a "Sage Tea" for keeping their hair dark, soft and luxuriant. In Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy we have an ideal preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp and thin, weak hair that is split at the ends or constantly coming out. A few applications of this valuable remedy will bring back the color, and in a short time it will remove every trace of dandruff and greatly improve the growth and appearance of the hair.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and notice the difference in your hair after a few days' treatment. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented.

Your trip will give you a fresh enthusiasm.

The trip out and back is part of the fun, if you go on one of the Burlington's luxurious limiteds. It does not cost any more to go that way and there isn't any good reason why you shouldn't have the best there is.

LORD LOUGH HEARD SOME REAL MUSIC

How an Angel Unawares Happened to Visit an Amateur Musician.

By NORA CAVENDISH.

"James," I said, "there is someone coming up the drive."

"Not at home," he said absently "His lordship is away from home."

"Hardly," I observed gravely, "when his lordship can be seen from the drive, seated at the piano."

"Celebrities at home," murmured James. "Lord Lough and his favorite Bechstein 'Grand.'"

His right hand, rejoining the left upon the keyboard, now proclaimed to the world in general, in uncertain notes, its inclination to be "beside the seaside." A moment later the front door bell rang loudly. Then through the open window a voice could be heard inquiring whether "Mr. Vincent" was at home.

"Certainly not," murmured James. "Tim, we are saved. He has come to the wrong house."

Voices were still heard in consultation, and a few minutes later the butler appeared in the doorway.

"I beg your pardon, m'lord," he said. "A gentleman has mistaken this house for Mr. Vincent's. He wishes to know whether he may speak to your lordship for a moment."

James groaned. The sound must, I am sure, have been distinctly audible to the visitor on the doorstep.

"Show him in, Reid," he said, resignedly.

There was a brief interval, during which James picked gloomily at the piano, his right hand again haltingly reiterating that it would "like to be beside the sea." Then the door opened, and a tall, dark man, obviously a foreigner, appeared. Reid muttered an unintelligible foreign name, and vanished.

The stranger, with many bows and apologies, began explaining the reason of his "seemingly unwarrantable intrusion." Lord Lough must pardon him. He was on his way to Mr. Vincent's house, motoring from London. His motor had been left a mile back on the road, having completely run out of petrol. He had walked on, thinking this to be Mr. Vincent's house—only to learn from the butler that he was still five miles from his destination.

His Performance Was Out of the Ordinary.

A pause here, in which James, pursuing the course expected of him, proffered the loan of petrol and the services of his chauffeur to carry it down to the car. The stranger appeared overwhelmed with gratitude.

"I fear I have interrupted a musical afternoon," he observed, in his elaborate foreign manner. "I myself adore music. I beg you will continue to play."

Willing to spare the musical stranger, I interposed.

"Perhaps you yourself play?" I suggested, politely. "Lough and I are only amateurs."

James looked coldly at me.

"Speak for yourself, Tim," he said. "Personally, I have been slaving away at this blessed piano morning, noon and night for weeks, and I don't mind owning that I think my touch has improved.

"Practice is everything," the stranger assented. "I beg you will play, Lord Lough. It will give me great pleasure to hear you."

James looked pleased, and, with a slightly self-conscious air resumed his seat at the piano.

"What shall I play?" he inquired, carelessly. "I was just running through a two-step when you arrived."

The stranger looked rather puzzled as James struck a few faulty chords upon the piano.

"I seemed to know it—the tune you were playing when I entered," he observed, politely. "I have heard it, I think, on the—the—er—barrel organ. But something more classical would do greater justice to your talent; if you will allow me to make the suggestion."

"Classical?" said James, vaguely. "Ah, yes, yes. I dare say you are right. I've got some opera things somewhere, I believe. Tim, old man, just have a look round while I start away with this." He hurriedly arranged upon the piano a composition entitled "Le Ballet des Sylphes," while the stranger seated himself in an attitude of polite attention upon a distant sofa. The "Sylphes" appeared to have hardly mastered the intricacies of the ballet, and to have executed their steps in hob-nailed boots, judging from the hesitating yet thunderous sounds that the piano now gave forth. A well-meant, though unsuccessful attempt on the musician's part to turn over with his left hand while sustaining the "Sylphes" in their terpsichoral efforts with his right, brought the music in a confused heap upon the ground, and the melody to an abrupt conclusion.

"Devilish difficult thing that to play," James announced, breathlessly. "I ought to have got one of you to turn over for me."

The visitor politely expressed his regrets at not having observed Lord Lough's dilemma in time to offer his assistance, and begged that we might be favored with another tune. This, however, I felt must at all costs be avoided, and I suggested, hurriedly, that the visitor should now take a turn at the piano. James, with obvious reluctance, seconded my proposal, and the stranger, after much persuasion from me, and none from James, took his seat on the music stool.

I do not, like James, pretend to have any knowledge of music! but to my untutored ear his performance sounded something quite out of the ordinary. I glanced at James as our guest rose from the piano, and was certain from the look of annoyance on his face that he was equally impressed.

"Capital, capital," he said, airily. "I see you are quite a professional! I hope you will come over and play to us again some time when you are next in the neighborhood."

The tone of his voice seemed to express also the hope that such an event might occur only in the remote future.

The sound of a motor on the drive now reached our ears, and our guest, with elaborate bows, and many expressions of gratitude, prepared to take his leave. I accompanied him to the front door, where I stood and watched him getting into his car. At the last moment a thought seemed to strike him, and, pulling a letter case from his pocket, he produced from it a card.

"Pray express my thanks to Lord Lough," he said, with foreign accent, and presenting the card to me with a low bow. "I shall do myself the honor of calling to replace the petrol I have borrowed, on my return next week."

With more bows and a final wave of his hand he disappeared down the drive in his motor.

Then I glanced at the card.

When I had recovered from my surprise I re-entered the library, from which the strains of music warned me that the "Sylphes" were giving an encore performance of their ballet.

"James," I said, when the music ceased. "What did you think of our visitor. Played well, what?"

"Quite well, quite well." His tone lacked enthusiasm. "A slight want of execution, perhaps; but a painstaking performer."

"Painstaking," I said thoughtfully. "Yes, perhaps that is the word I wanted. Isn't Valaski, James, the new genius chap? That fellow's playing rather reminded me of his."

James smiled pityingly at me as he lightly struck a few false notes on the piano.

"Valaski, Tim," he said. "You wouldn't know Valaski from a barrel organ!"

I laid Valaski's card gently upon the piano, and went away to play the gramophone.

BUTTERMILK LONGEVITY AID

Cells in the Body That Attack Microbes Feed on the Fluid, Say the Scientists.

Buttermilk will prolong the human life for many years. That assertion has been proved by several of the leading physicians of the world—Pasteur and Metchnikoff of Paris.

In the blood are little cells known as leucocytes. Those cells are the scavengers of the body, and in their concave surfaces are able to grasp a germ or a foreign body and force its elimination from the human system. The leucocytes figuratively speaking are the home defenders of the body.

Under the microscope the home defenders can be seen flowing along in the blood streams. Suddenly they will stop as though they sensed some near danger. Changing their shape to that of a v they will penetrate the blood vessel wall and pick up a stray germ, probably a typhoid or one of the many other varieties.

When a person wounds the skin and the blood runs the home defenders rush to the afflicted part and project themselves into the surface of the abrasion, preventing the entrance of outside germ life. They give up their lives to attain their object and the hard little ridges felt on both sides of a slight wound are the leucocytes so tightly impacted that their lifeless bodies help form scar tissue.

As years pass that commendable action of sacrificing themselves so the human body may live ceases and the little friends of the body once known as home defenders turn into a lawless element, ravaging the body they once defended.

Metchnikoff and Pasteur found that buttermilk contained an element which prevented the leucocytes from ravaging the body. Experiments proved they would eat the buttermilk in preference to the human tissue.

JEFFERSON AS A NATURALIST

Carried Bones of Common Sloth to Philadelphia Supposing Them Those of Mammoth.

It is said that when Thomas Jefferson journeyed from Monticello to Philadelphia on his way to take the oath of office as vice president he carried a lot of bones in his baggage. The bones, alleged to be those of a mammoth, had been found in Greenbrier county, Virginia, and sent to Monticello, where they were set up by Jefferson, who, it appears, entertained a somewhat exaggerated notion of his attainments in natural history, and who stood sponsor for the bones as those of "a carnivorous clawed animal entirely unknown to science."

It was not until after Jefferson reached Philadelphia that he was undeceived, for at a glance the learned Doctor Wistar saw that they were the bones of the common sloth, several specimens of which he showed the Virginian. Jefferson, it is related, was greatly chagrined, especially as his discovery became known as Megalonyx jeffersonii.

It has been pointed out that, indirectly, no less a naturalist than the great Buffon may have been responsible for Jefferson's error. It was the Virginian's practice to send Buffon specimens and information, and with the subtle flattery of a courtier the French naturalist wrote:

"I should have consulted you, sir, before publishing my natural history, and then I should have been sure of the facts."

JUDGE LIKED GOOD SCRAP

Because Plaintiff Was Not Injured His Honor Discharged the Defendant.

In a case tried before a Maine justice of the peace, one Jones, a lumberman, pleaded guilty to assault upon one Libby, another woodsman. The justice seemed a bit perplexed how to proceed when no evidence had been produced, and finally called upon Libby to stand up. Libby stretched up his six feet of husky frame.

"Any bones broken?" asked the judge.

"Nary one," said Libby, shaking his head seriously.

"Any bruises, contusions, sprains or dislocations?"

"Nary one?" said the plaintiff, regretfully.

"Make your nose bleed?"

"Not a mite."

"Black your eyes?"

"Neither one."

"Why, you don't appear to be injured at all," said the judge in surprise.

"No, your honor," answered Libby. "He didn't injure me none, he only struck me a few times."

"Well," said the judge, slowly and with disgust showing in his accent, "when this court strikes a man that man always has at least one black eye. I'll assess the costs of this court, that's one dollar and twenty-one cents, on the defendant, but you don't get no damages for any such scrap."

High-Caste Pushcart Men.

At a railway station in Calcutta, early in the morning, a long train, consisting largely of third-class carriages, is made up, amid the clamor of disputes, invariably incident to any purchase in the Orient. My fellow-passengers, pilgrims on their way to the Holy City, are buying from venders greasy sweets or tough dough cakes indigestible to any but an oriental stomach. These venders are invariably of high caste, according to the Hindu system of social position, for no Hindu will buy food or drink from one of a lower caste than himself.

The great civilizer in India, however, as elsewhere, is the railway, which has made it necessary for the Brahman to sit next to the despised Sudra if he would travel. On all ordinary occasions, should the passengers of one compartment all be of one caste, they put their feet out of the window—for want of space—and sleep in peace and security. Should they be of different castes, however, all but the lowest, the Sudra, sit rigidly erect, guarding against defilement of their caste by a touch of their more unfortunate fellow-travelers.—Christian Herald.

TO BRING SUIT.

Those That Are On the Delinquent Tax List Will Be Sued This Week.

From what we heard at City Collector Grems' office, persons who are delinquent had better make it a point to see the collector this week, as he is preparing a list and the attorney will bring suit against eighty of the delinquent property owners. That means an additional expense that the property owner must pay.

Thankful for Patronage.

Miss Alma Nash, director of the Missouri Ladies' Military band of this city, wishes to extend sincere thanks to all the people who have in any way encouraged the organization, which will close the first year of its existence in September. Miss Nash and her band girls are preparing to start the second year with greater zeal and will give a minstrel show in October. They will go to St. Joseph in October to take part in the contest and are expecting to attend the world's fair in San Francisco in 1915.

The Ladies' Military band is especially grateful to the Woman's Relief Corps, the G. A. R. and the Owls lodge, who have been especially courteous to them.

The band's trip to the Guilford and Ravenwood picnic was delightful. The treatment they received from the people of those places exceeded anything they had expected. They were taken right into the homes of the people and treated as members of the family, and when they came home they were brought in automobiles. Who could think of better treatment than that?

And then the bands of the towns treated them with such fine courtesy. The last evening of the Ravenwood picnic the Ladies' band, the Ravenwood band and the Harmony church band played several numbers together, making one band of fifty-six pieces, and the directors took turns in directing the music.

Returned to St. Joseph.

Mrs. Donald Cady returned to her home in St. Joseph Wednesday morning, after a month's visit with her mother, Mrs. Martha T. Denny, and family. She was accompanied by her nieces, Evangeline and Lucile Speckerman of Rock Port, who have been visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Spickerman and Mrs. M. T. Denny. Their father, Rev. J. R. Spickerman, will come to St. Joseph to accompany them home.

Electric Fans at Prayer Meeting.

The mid-week services of the Presbyterian church will be resumed this evening. The topic for the service tonight will be "Over-Churching, and the Value of Church Federation." The service will be forty-five minutes in duration, and will be held in the auditorium in order that the electric fans may contribute to the comfort of those who attend.

To Go to Omaha.

Dr. Charles T. Bell and Dr. Wm. Wallis, Jr., will go to Omaha Thursday morning to attend the annual meeting of the Tri-State Surgical association, which will be in session in that city on Thursday and Friday.

Mrs. D. G. Danner and daughter, Miss Grace Danner, and Mrs. J. A. Walkinshaw, of Blanchard, Ia., were Maryville business visitors Wednesday. Miss Danner will begin study at the Conservatory.
